

Jake Reece

Secretary

Jake is a firm believer that marketing is all about your customer; listening to them, educating them and improving their experience to create a connection between the passions of a customer base and the products of a company to create natural, lasting chemistry. After getting his degrees in Marketing and Entrepreneurial Management, Jake brought his customer-focused approach to several different teams; Adidas, Five Ten, JensonUSA, Starbucks, Ajilon, MBI Media and more, covering projects from massive outreach on public works projects to working with local schools to give back to the generation of tomorrow. Currently, he is a member of the marketing and sales team for Clark Dietrich, a steel building materials company who is focused on leading the market in customer service and product quality to expand the possibilities of building systems.

In his free time, Jake is a musician and has performed at notable venues across Southern California, from the Whisky-A-Go-Go, to the Honda Center, Disneyland and the Rose Parade, music has allowed him to explore and connect with people across the nation, ranging from teaching school children all the way up to performing with some of the greatest musicians of the age, such as members of the L.A. Philharmonic and Earth, Wind and Fire. He is also a 1st degree black belt, having studied the martial arts of Kung Fu San Soo, Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu and Traditional Boxing, and even having trained with world-famous martial artists such as UFC Champion TJ Dillashaw and Master Dave Hopkins.